

Jail Canyon: Trail Maintenance

Excerpts from Valerie's Field Notebook

This was an unofficial trail we closed.

The real trail after.

Date: July 15, 2002

Weather: Warm, cool, and breezy

Objective: To make trail more obvious, to keep people from going into the streams and damaging the natural environment.

Work Description: We pulled weeds, planted vertical mulch, cut branches and brush.

Feelings: I felt that this project was very successful because we were able to clear a main trail and cover up another one so that people would not go into the streams and end up damaging natural environments.

Interesting Stuff: I learned that Big Horn Sheep are sighted throughout the cooler days of the year drinking water from the streams and roaming around on the rocks.

The crew working on the trail.

The crew working on the trail.